The people of Afghanistan suffered great loss in human lives, personal property, and the deliberate destruction of monuments, museums, and artifact collections during the wars of the 1980s and 1990s. They are now witnessing the slow dispossessing of their cultural heritage by looters who are pillaging archaeological sites and traffickers who are smuggling artifacts out of the country, frequently, it is believed, in connection with other criminal activities. This situation will continue as long as these traffickers have access to foreign markets of buyers of illicit antiquities.

To assist in stopping the looting and destruction of Afghan archaeological sites, the International Council of Museums has published this Red List of Afghanistan Antiquities at Risk, as a tool for law enforcement authorities, and to raise public awareness and encourage international cooperation in the protection of the cultural heritage of Afghanistan.

This Red List is the fourth in the series* of ICOM Red Lists of Antiquities at Risk. The Red Lists are representative lists of general types or categories of objects, generally protected by national legislation and international agreements, which are subjected to illicit international trafficking. They are drawn up by teams of international experts in the archaeology and ethnology of the countries or regions of origin. The objects illustrated are not, to the best of the experts’ knowledge, stolen or illicitly acquired. The Red Lists are intended to protect cultural heritage at risk by helping customs officials, police officers, art dealers, museums, and collectors recognize objects of possible illicit provenance. Potential buyers are advised not to purchase them unless they are accompanied by verifiable ownership and provenance documentation, and authorities are urged to take appropriate action when there is presumption of illicit provenance, pending further enquiries.

ICOM is the international organisation of museums and museum professionals which is committed to the conservation, continuation and communication to society of the world’s natural and cultural heritage, present and future, tangible and intangible.

With 21,000 members in 141 countries, ICOM provides an international network of museum professionals across the spectrum of disciplines and specialisations.

ICOM was founded in 1946. It is a non-governmental, not-for-profit organisation which has formal links with UNESCO and consultative status with the United Nations’ Economic and Social Council.

The fight against illicit traffic of cultural goods is one of ICOM’s core commitments. The Red List of Afghanistan Antiquities at Risk has been compiled to prevent cultural objects being sold illegally on the art market, and thus to ensure the protection of Afghanistan heritage. It is based on ICOM’s Red List concept, and follows on from previous work on Africa, Latin America and Irak.

RED LIST OF AFGHANISTAN
ANTIQUITIES AT RISK

[Image of artifacts and ICOM logo]
Introduction

The great archaeological heritage of Afghanistan is of universal importance. It is now at serious risk from organized destruction and plundering at the hands of criminals. The National Museum of Afghanistan in Kabul has been looted and is missing a great part of its collection, much of which has found its way into the art market. Ancient sites and monuments, ranging from the Old Stone Age to the 20th century are being attacked and systematically looted. Objects of all types and materials, from prehistoric times to the Indo-Greek, Buddhist and Islamic periods are being lost. Sculpture, architectural elements, ancient manuscripts, bronzes, wooden objects and ceramics are being illegally exported at an unrelenting rate. It is the duty of the international community to unite in protecting this unique cultural heritage.

Purpose

This document has been designed as a tool for museums, art dealers and collectors, customs officials and police officers to help them to recognize objects that could originate illegally from Afghanistan. This Red List describes under various categories, the general types of artefacts most likely to appear illicitly on the antiquities market so that these may be identified. Such objects are protected by Afghan legislation, which bans their export and sale. An appeal is being made to museums, auction houses, art dealers and collectors not to acquire such objects without clear title and established provenance.

The Red List of Afghanistan Antiquities at Risk is in no way exhaustive, and any antiquity for sale said to be from Afghanistan should be treated with great caution and suspicion.

Afghanistan cultural heritage is protected under:

Law on the Preservation of Historical and Cultural Heritage
Issue No. 828, Sawar 31st 1383, May 20th 2004

On 20 March 1979, Afghanistan ratified the 1972 Convention concerning the Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage

THE RED LIST INCLUDES THE FOLLOWING CATEGORIES OF OBJECTS:
(The images do not, at the date of this printing, reproduce stolen objects. They serve only to illustrate the categories of objects which are the target of illicit traffic.)

PRE ISLAMIC PERIOD

Ancient pottery / ceramics

The shapes and floral motives identify this kind of pottery as characteristic of the oldest proto-historic site of Afghanistan. [illus. 1]

Early metal artefacts

Copper tools often show signs of heavy corrosion. The tools include flat blades, arrowheads, axe heads, fringed axes, awls and blades of varying shapes and lengths. [illus. 2, 3, 4, 5]

Cosmetic jars of metal

Small jars that may also have three legs, and may be in the shape of an animal. The jars sometimes contain a rod for applying the cosmetics. [illus. 6, 7]

Bactrian statuettes

These composite statuettes made of chlorite and calcite (usually with an exceedingly small head and elaborate dress) are said to come from a very broad area covering northern Afghanistan, but also eastern Iran, and southern Turkmenistan. Size: maximum 14 cm high. [illus. 8]
Reliquaries

Containers, most often in the form of pellet-shaped boxes with lids or miniature stupas. Usually made from stone (often steatite) though many are made of bronze or precious metals (gold or silver). Size: 2 to 50 cm high. [illus. 9]

Stone batons (scepters)

Finely worked stone rods or poles, they are sometimes carved at one end in the shape of a horse’s hoof. Size: 50 cm to nearly 2 meters long. [illus. 10]

Stone weights

Made from hard granite-like stone and limestone, they are of several types: teardrop, ‘handbag’, ball-shapes sometimes with a small ring. Size: from ca. 20 cm to 30 cm high. [illus. 11]

Seals

In metal and hardstone, shell, bone and other materials. The commonest of these are ‘compartmented seals’, usually round, 2 or 3 cm in diameter and bearing images in deep relief of geometric figures, swastikas, birds or animals. Size: 2 or 3 cm in diameter. [illus. 12, 13]

Ivories

Ivory panels with carved decoration. Originally affixed as decoration to wooden luxury goods such as a jewel box. [illus. 14, 15]
Coins

Antique coins, of bronze, silver and gold, are hand stamped. Pre-Islamic coins usually include the portraits of the king on one side and the divinities on the reverse. Islamic examples are decorated only with Arabic script. [illus. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21]

Manuscripts

Ancient manuscripts written usually in Indic scripts or occasionally Bactrian. Usually of palm leaf paper, birch bark or vellum. [illus. 22]

Fragments of wall paintings

Wall painting fragments have mostly thin pigment in primary colors (red, blue, green, yellow). The figures are usually outlined in black. The paintings have a white base on a ground of clay mixed with small stones and vegetal matter. Subjects vary but are often Buddha figures. [illus. 23]

Buddhist sculpture

A/ Stone heads and reliefs: the schist reliefs in the Gandhara style sometimes have narrative subjects. [illus. 24, 25]

B/ Stucco: with strong reminiscences from Hellenism in the elegant definition of the Buddhist types. [illus. 26]

C/ Painted clay: fragments of sculpture in stone (usually schist but sometimes limestone), stucco, and clay. The objects are often single images, usually a Buddha or Bodhisattva, but sometime also male or female donor figures. [illus. 24, 25, 26, 27]
ISLAMIC PERIOD

Manuscripts
Islamic paper manuscripts are found singly or sewed together as books. They contain ornamental calligraphy usually in Persian but also Arabic, the pages are often decorated with floral designs in various colors and gilding. Occasionally there are illustrations in full color or drawings of single figures, rarely also portraits in black ink. [illus. 28]

Metalwork
The great bronze products inlaid with gold and silver are rarely seen on the market, but lesser quality copper alloy objects in many shapes are common. They are decorated with incised motifs, sometimes inlaid in brass. [illus. 29, 30]

Tiles
Moulded and glazed ceramic tiles, mostly square but some polygonal, molded in relief with animals or vegetal décor, or inscriptions. [illus. 31, 32, 33]

Pottery / Ceramics
They include the green and yellow ‘Bamyan’ bowls with sgraffito (incised) decoration. [illus. 34, 35]

Architectural elements
Pieces of superbly worked stone, usually flat white marble panels carved with Islamic inscriptions or decorative motifs. Often associated with architectural fragments dating to every period of Afghan history. [illus. 36, 37]
