

Museum International is the International Council of Museum's peer-reviewed journal, which is committed to fostering knowledge sharing within the international museum community. The journal aims to provoke debate in the museum and heritage fields by publishing multidisciplinary, international research articles, case studies, reports and reviews.

Museum International favours a thematic approach, with each issue dedicated to a specific theme selected by an international editorial board.

The editorial board ensures that the journal reflects contemporary issues in the museum field and the diversity of the international museum community.

Museum International is currently published in English by Taylor & Francis/Routledge and in Chinese by Yilin Press.
