09 ICOM in numbers
In 2022, the world emerged from the Covid-19 pandemic and faced the challenges brought about by the global crisis. The introduction of online and hybrid working methods had a significant impact on the way people collaborate, communicate, and innovate, including in the field of museums. Amidst the pandemic, the war in Ukraine led to efforts from ICOM (International Council of Museums) to support Ukrainian colleagues. ICOM released a statement condemning the destruction of cultural heritage in Ukraine and mobilized international support. In addition to the crisis in Ukraine, ICOM worked on various projects and initiatives, such as the development of an Emergency Red List for Ukraine, the revision of the museum definition, and the Code of Ethics. The organization also focused on sustainability, climate action, and advocacy for museums’ roles in sustainable development. Financially, ICOM showed recovery from the pandemic with a surplus. Efforts were made to improve communication and engagement between members and the Executive Board.

24th August
The 26th ICOM General Conference held in Prague in 2022 was the first-ever hybrid conference in ICOM's history. Despite the challenges, the conference was a resounding success, with 3,705 delegates (3,050 on-site and 655 online) participating from 124 countries. This hybrid format allowed ICOM to reach a wider audience and connect with members who may not have been able to attend otherwise.

The conference featured a wide range of subjects throughout the rich programme including 116 sessions with 1,073 speakers, 32 off-site meetings for the International Committees and 40 excursion programmes with 61 museums in the Czech Republic. Attendees had the opportunity to exchange their knowledge, ideas and best practices as well as network with colleagues from around the world.

The Czech Republic is home to a rich cultural heritage, with a long and fascinating history that is reflected in its many museums and cultural institutions. In that, ICOM Prague 2022 was a great opportunity for international participants to discover the local museums and museological practices. At the same time, the conference could not be successful without the great support by the local museums that hosted meeting and welcomed the guests.
Statutory meetings during the conference brought some important for ICOM and the museum field. One of the unforgettable moment was when the new ICOM museum definition, after a thorough process of consultations and discussions for years, was finally approved by ICOM’s members during the Extraordinary General Assembly. In addition, the three resolutions were successfully adopted as well as the ICOM Strategic Plan 2022–2028 was subsequently adopted by 93 % of agreement during the 37th Ordinary ICOM General Assembly.

The preparation and implementation of the conference was not an easy task but the project team worked tirelessly. The success of the conference would not have taken place without the close cooperation of ICOM Secretariat and Committees, ICOM Czech Republic, and Guarant International (PCO, Professional Conference Organiser).

Overall, the 26th ICOM General Conference was a testament to the resilience and adaptability of the museum community, and it demonstrated the power of international collaboration and dialogue. The general conference looks forward to continuing to serve its members and promote the important work of museums around the globe - We hope to see you in Dubai!
ICOM Prague 2022 also saw the culmination of the revision of the ICOM museum definition. On August 24th, in the framework of the 26th ICOM General Conference, the ICOM Extraordinary General Assembly approved a new museum definition. The vote was the culmination of an 18-month participatory process that involved hundreds of museum professionals from 126 National Committees from all over the world.

Aiming to respond to the need for a democratic and open process of consultation to the National Committees, International Committees, Regional Alliances and Affiliated Organisations that constitute ICOM, the Standing Committee for the Museum Definition (ICOM Define) formulated a methodology based on greater transparency, as well as the careful listening to all proposals.

This new definition is aligned with some of the major changes in the role of museums, recognising the importance of inclusivity, community participation and sustainability.

“A museum is a not-for-profit, permanent institution in the service of society that researches, collects, conserves, interprets and exhibits tangible and intangible heritage. Open to the public, accessible and inclusive, museums foster diversity and sustainability. They operate and communicate ethically, professionally and with the participation of communities, offering varied experiences for education, enjoyment, reflection and knowledge sharing.”

Given the threats to cultural heritage in many countries around the world, ICOM’s expertise is invaluable in finding solutions to this problem.

Ernest KPAN, Chair, ICOM Côte d’Ivoire
As an international organisation globally recognised for its expertise and the leading role it plays for museums and culture, ICOM works closely with other intergovernmental and non-governmental organisations. While maintaining our long-established partnerships – including with UNESCO, UNIDROIT, INTERPOL and WCO – the Heritage Protection Department is continuously working to extend ICOM’s network and to ensure that the voice of the museum community is taken into account in initiatives related to culture in general, and cultural property protection (CPP), particularly where ICOM’s expertise is specifically requested recognised.

- ICOM has collaborated with National Committees, such as ICOM Burkina Faso, ICOM Mali, and ICOM Côte d’Ivoire, to raise funds from ALIPH Foundation for projects that aim to strengthen museum security, combat illicit trafficking, and provide guidance on protection measures.
- ICOM has focused on engaging further with European institutions, resulting in its notable presence in the new EU Action Plan against trafficking in cultural goods for 2022-2025.
Ukraine: gathering expertise and coordinating international collaboration

The ICOM network has actively worked to promote the safety of museum professionals and cultural heritage in Ukraine since February 2022, issuing official statements condemning the destruction of cultural heritage and calling for support for museums and professionals.

The ICOM Secretariat and several National Committees have provided material support to Ukrainian museums and professionals, coordinated international collaboration efforts with various international partners and organisations, and facilitated knowledge-sharing within its network. Financial support and donations have been provided. Thanks to ICOM Ukraine and Ukrainian experts, the ICOM Emergency Red List for Ukraine, which aims to prevent and combat looting and trafficking of cultural objects, was prepared, launched and widely welcomed. Special grants have also been offered to support museums and professionals in and from Ukraine.
We wish for museums to be seen as allies in facing the common threat of climate change.

Statement on museums and climate activism
November 2022
In 2022, ICOM actively promoted sustainable development through various initiatives. The organisation hosted a webinar to discuss sustainability initiatives in African museums, focusing on best practices, strategies, and challenges faced by museums in Africa. The webinar highlighted the important role of museums in promoting sustainable development and environmental protection. As a follow-up to the Museum and Sustainability Conference organized by Shanghai University in November 2021, ICOM also organised the webinar Perspectives and Practice on Museums and Education for Sustainable Development in Asia-Pacific to discuss the role of museums in SDG 4 on education.

ICOM also actively participated in the Climate Heritage Network (CHN), which launched a new action plan in 2022 aimed at mobilising museums and cultural institutions to take collective action against climate change. The action plan included initiatives such as capacity-building programs, research, and advocacy to promote the integration of climate action and cultural heritage preservation.

The organisation also participated in Mondiacult, UNESCO World Conference on Cultural Policies and Sustainable Development, a global conference aimed at discussing the role of culture in sustainable development. The conference emphasized the need for cultural institutions to adopt sustainable practices and promote social and environmental responsibility. ICOM stressed the importance of museums as educational institutions that can contribute meaningfully to sustainable development.
Additionally, in 2022, ICOM advocated for culture to be at the heart of COP27, the United Nations Climate Change Conference in Egypt. The organization believed that cultural heritage and creative industries had an important role to play in achieving the goals of the Paris Agreement and promoting a sustainable future. ICOM worked to raise awareness about the role of culture in climate action and to ensure that cultural perspectives were integrated into the discussions and decision-making processes at COP27.

Overall, in 2022, ICOM actively promoted sustainability in museums and cultural institutions, emphasizing the important role that they can play in addressing global environmental challenges. Through initiatives such as capacity building, research, advocacy, and education, the organization worked to mobilize cultural institutions to take collective action against climate change and promote sustainable development. In this context, ICOM’s Working Group on Sustainability (WGS) designed the framework Action Plan for a Committee-driven approach to sustainable development.
Carbon Footprint Analysis

In 2022, an assessment was carried out with the aim of measuring and reducing ICOM’s carbon footprint as part of its contribution to the UN 2030 Agenda. ICOM is one of the first global cultural institutions to measure its carbon footprint.

The study found that member travel accounted for the majority (93%) of ICOM’s carbon footprint, equivalent to approximately 2,400 tonnes of CO2 emissions. Procurement accounted for 5% (138 tonnes CO2E), while freight contributed 2% (37 tonnes CO2E). The emissions from the Secretariat offices in 2019 constituted around 0.6% (16 tonnes CO2E) of the overall emissions, including fixed assets and energy use. An action plan based on the assessment’s results will be developed and proposed in the future, with further data tracking and assessments planned for 2022, 2025, and 2028. ICOM aims to address emissions reduction alongside global equity and inclusion, while leveraging its network for climate action and sustainable development in museums.

Fig 1. Summary of results: GHG emissions per category by absolute value and percentage. Travel: 2396 TCO2e, 93% / Other: 17 TCO2e, <1% / Procurement: 138 TCO2e, 5% / Freight: 37 TCO2e, 2%

The course was developed in partnership with ICOM Nigeria, Yemisi Shyllon Museum of Art, Pan-Atlantic University, and with the support of the National Museum of African American History & Culture, Smithsonian Institution. It focused on strategies and tools that contemporary Nigerian museums can use to protect and communicate their country’s heritage in a participatory manner. There were 30 participants from Nigeria.
ICOM International Museum Research and Exchange Centre (IMREC)
Following its establishment in 2020 at the University of Shanghai (SHU), IMREC entered a partnership with ICOM Secretariat to cooperate on the use and management of the SHU fund for research projects. In August 2022, ICOM-IMREC launched a targeted research call for projects that explore the current situation of public funding for museums. ICOM-IMREC is planning further activities, including conferences on Decolonisation and Sustainability, over the next two years. The aim of the partnership is to strengthen the ICOM network in the Asia-Pacific region.

ICOM Germany – ICOM Zambia Exchange programme
In August-September 2022, a member from Botswana took part in a 1-month study visit to dialogue and exchange with professionals from the Museum of European Cultures in Berlin. The programme also provided for the member to attend the ICOM General Conference. The exchange is a collaboration between ICOM Secretariat, ICOM Germany and ICOM Zambia.

2023
A new Dictionary of Museology has been published in French (with Dunod Ed.) and English (with Routledge Publ.). Other book projects, including one on museum management and an open-access book on communities and museums, are underway.

ICOM Voices publishes contributions from the museum field twice a month in the three languages of ICOM.

The Publications and Documentation department assists members with publishing and archiving, and has published guidelines for committees.

ICOM has launched a digital platform with databases for Documentation and Archives. The Online Library, accessible to the public, contains over 47,400 records, including digital files and/or URL link for many of them. The Archive databases have 7,477 records, most of them with attached files, including 2,822 photographs and 294 posters, thanks to digitisation efforts. They are reserved for ICOM members.

Museum International journal is published twice a year. It addresses topical issues and has seen increased downloads. The journal will cover decolonization and sustainability topics in upcoming issues. ICOM members have free access to the magazine on the Taylor & Francis website.

ICOM is a partner of the International Journal of Intangible Heritage, published in English and Korean once a year by the National Folk Museum of Korea. One article from each issue is translated into French and Spanish and published in the ICOM Voices web series.
INTERNATIONAL MUSEUM DAY
International Museum Day 2022 explored the potential of museums to bring about positive change in their communities through three lenses:

- The power of achieving sustainability: Museums are strategic partners in the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals of the United Nations. As key actors in their local communities, they contribute to a wide variety of Goals, which include fostering short-circuit and social economy and disseminating scientific information on environmental challenges.

- The power of innovating on digitalisation and accessibility: Museums have become innovative playing-grounds where new technologies can be developed and applied to everyday life. Digital innovation can make museums more accessible and engaging, helping audiences understand complex and nuanced concepts.

- The power of community building through education: Through its collections and programmes, museums thread a social fabric that is essential in community building. By upholding democratic values and providing life-long learning opportunities to all, they contribute to shaping an informed and engaged civil society.

STRENGTHENING COOPERATION

On January 31, ICOM and ALIPH signed a Memorandum of Understanding at the Louvre Museum in Paris, concentrating on the organisations continued shared objective of protecting heritage, with a particular focus on conflict and post-conflict zones. ICOM and ALIPH worked closely together on various operational projects, including a follow-up project with ICOM Burkina Faso and ICOM Mali in 2023 to strengthen museums in the Sahel region and combat the illicit trafficking of cultural property.

As a follow-up to the Museum and Sustainability Conference organised by Shanghai University in November 2021, ICOM organised on February 2nd a webinar bringing together experts from the Asia-Pacific region to discuss the role of museums in Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 4 on Quality education.

MUSEUMS AND EDUCATION
THE NEW ICOM ONLINE LIBRARY

ICOM’s Online Library and Archive, launched in February, contains almost 55,000 references to notices, publications, activity reports and photographs related to the field of museums and to the history of ICOM and its Committees. The online library is the culmination of many years’ work and was made possible by a major digitisation project of ICOM’s archives, which are now also accessible to members and researchers at the Secretariat’s headquarters in Paris.

To mark the Decade of Indigenous Languages and to highlight the connections between Indigenous languages and living heritage, we collaborated with the Endangered Languages Project (ELP) to share a playlist featuring music by Indigenous artists and their languages. This playlist was created for the ELP Festival of Indigenous Languages to celebrate the creativity, innovation, and achievements of artists making music in their Indigenous and endangered languages, focusing on contemporary global genres.

MUSEUMS AND INDIGENOUS LANGUAGES
NEW ETHICAL STANDARDS

The ICOM Ethics Committee (ETHCOM) issued two new standards that complement the ICOM Code of Ethics for Museums. The Standards on Accessioning elaborate upon the principles expressed in the ICOM Code of Ethics for Museums concerning the acquisition and accessioning of objects for museum collections, and the Standards on Fundraising concern the development of financial resources for a museum through external sources including individuals, philanthropic organisations, foundations, businesses, and governmental bodies.

In April, ICOM published a new number of its peer-reviewed journal Museum International. Empty Museums examines the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on museums, their professionals and the sector as a whole. The issue brings together 15 contributions from across the globe on museums’ responses to the pandemic, as well as innovations in community practices, organisational philosophies, curatorial policies and new uses of technology.
OPEN EDITION OF MUSEUM INTERNATIONAL

On December 15, another Museum International edition was published, addressing the diversity of issues, themes and actors shaping the international museum landscape today. This open edition follows the journal’s primary vocation of fostering knowledge sharing and debate within the international museum community.

On September 15, the French edition of the new Dictionary of Museology was jointly published by Armand Colin (Dunod) and ICOM. More than 1,200 entries, arranged into seven themes, analyse and contextualise terms used in the museum field, from the most academic (exhibition, artefact, intangible heritage, cabinet of curiosity) to the most contemporary (NFT, memory spots, cybermuseum).
